

What members say:

Keeping abreast of new innovations

"Being part of the Charolais Society is important to me because I keep abreast of new innovations within the breed, and within the cattle industry as a whole, through informative editorials in our magazine plus society hosted events. The Breedplan weekend in Toowoomba in 2009 was a great example of this. Being a member also provides a united front for the breed to be competitive with other breeds and to take Charolais to the forefront in the cattle industry in the future. To do this individually would be very difficult. It's also a great social network allowing us to meet some fantastic new people, plus there's comfort being part of a support group to help with any problems or issues in the breed or in our own operation."

- Jim Wedge, Ascot Charolais, Queensland

Assessing our herd against others

"We became members of the Charolais Society in 1994. Membership has given us the ability to assess our herd against others by ways of competing in the show ring and also by using Breedplan as a tool to assess certain traits within our herd. Friendships made through our involvement with Charolais have been both rewarding and the knowledge gained invaluable."

- Anne Thompson, Venturon Charolais, Western Australia

Pulling together to for the breed

"We have been members since 1972. Being a member in the early days of the Society meant we all pulled together to strive for the breed. We got to know each other, and in many cases, have formed life-long friendships. It's been rewarding to be part of the early struggles and to see the breed evolve into the success it is today. It's the people who have made the difference. I have always found Charolais members friendly and accommodating. And I can't speak highly enough of the guidance and help that head office has provided."

- Sue Salier, Minnie-Vale Charolais, New South Wales

Informative and easily accessible information

"I have found many benefits being a member of the Charolais Society. I have access to people with common interests and have made many valuable and lasting friendships. I also like receiving the very professional and informative magazine several times a year. I can also easily access information that helps me as a breeder, for example upcoming events, sale results, and advertising my cattle."

- Anne Abbott, Mt William Charolais, Victoria

A membership to suit everybody.

Full Members:

- Opportunity to sell and transfer Charolais cattle identified in the Herdbook.
- Opportunity to register Charolais Progeny.
- Full voting rights at CSA General Meetings either in person or by proxy.
- Opportunity to get involved in Regional Committees or become a part of the Federal Council
- Automatic inclusion as a member of the Australian Registered Cattle Breeders Association (ARCBA).

Associate Members:

- Receive all literature from the Society (including Society Publications, Bulletins, and relevant information on breed improvement when available).
- Ideal for non breeding, commercial producers.

Intermediate Members:

- Limited to those who are between 18 – 25 years of age in the year of membership.
- Opportunity to sell, register and transfer Charolais cattle recognised in the Herdbook (when Entry and Herd Prefix fee paid).

Youth Members:

- Limited to those who are under 18 years of age in the year of membership.
- Opportunity to sell, register and transfer Charolais cattle recognised in the Herdbook (when Entry and Herd Prefix fee paid).
- Participation in national Youth Events.
- Opportunity to apply for the Garrett Bursaries.

If this sounds like you, please contact the Charolais Society of Australia for more information:

Charolais Society of Australia Limited
PO Box 772, Armidale NSW 2350
Phone: 02 6771 1666
Fax: 02 6771 1561
Email: office@charolais.com.au

BECOME A MEMBER

Cross into profit

